Foreword

The International Organization of Legal Metrology (OIML) is a worldwide, intergovernmental organization whose primary aim is to harmonize the regulations and metrological controls applied by the national metrological services, or related organizations, of its Member States. The main categories of OIML publications are:

- International Recommendations (OIML R), which are model regulations that establish the metrological characteristics required of certain measuring instruments and which specify methods and equipment for checking their conformity. OIML Member States shall implement these Recommendations to the greatest possible extent;
- International Documents (OIML D), which are informative in nature and which are intended to harmonize and improve work in the field of legal metrology;
- International Guides (OIML G), which are also informative in nature and which are intended to give guidelines for the application of certain requirements to legal metrology;
- International Basic Publications (OIML B), which define the operating rules of the various OIML structures and systems; and OIML Draft Recommendations, Documents and Guides are developed by Project Groups linked to Technical Committees or Subcommittees which comprise representatives from OIML Member States. Certain international and regional institutions also participate on a consultation basis. Cooperative agreements have been established between the OIML and certain institutions, such as ISO and the IEC, with the objective of avoiding contradictory requirements. Consequently, manufacturers and users of measuring instruments, test laboratories, etc. may simultaneously apply OIML publications and those of other institutions.

International Recommendations, Documents, Guides and Basic Publications are published in English (E) and translated into French (F) and are subject to periodic revision.

Additionally, the OIML publishes or participates in the publication of Vocabularies (OIML V) and periodically commissions legal metrology experts to write Expert Reports (OIML E). Expert Reports are intended to provide information and advice, and are written solely from the viewpoint of their author, without the involvement of a Technical Committee or Subcommittee, nor that of the CIML. Thus, they do not necessarily represent the views of the OIML.

The OIML wishes to thank ILAC for allowing the reproduction of some of the material from ILAC-R4:10/2016 in this publication.

This publication – reference OIML B xx, edition 201x (E) – was developed by the BIML Project Group 8. It was approved for final publication by the International Committee of Legal Metrology at its xx meeting in 201x.

Rules for the use of OIML logos

1 Purpose

Organizations that are members of the OIML, organizations that are in liaison with the OIML, and manufacturers that have obtained an OIML Certificate under an OIML certificate system should be able to benefit from visually identifying their status through the appropriate use of the logos owned by the OIML. However, in displaying these logos the organizations should not mislead anyone, devalue or degrade the logos, or use them illegally. This publication therefore sets out the conditions for the use of the logos owned by the OIML.

2 Introduction

- 2.1 The OIML is an intergovernmental treaty organization established in 1955 (see OIML B 1 [1]) whose primary aim is to harmonize the regulations and metrological controls applied by the national metrological services, or related organizations, of its Member States. Since its establishment the OIML has created and used a number of different logos. The current OIML logo (Figure 1) was first used in 2000 and is an internationally registered trademark of the OIML.
- 2.2 The OIML has developed the OIML Certification System (OIML-CS) which is a system for issuing, registering and using OIML Certificates and their associated OIML type evaluation/test reports for types of measuring instruments (including families of measuring instruments, modules, or families of modules), based on the requirements of OIML Recommendations (see OIML B 18 [2]). The OIML-CS logo (Figure 2) was first used in 2017 in preparation for the launch of the OIML-CS on 1 January 2018.
- 2.3 The OIML-CS replaced the OIML Basic Certificate System (OIML B 3 [3]) (established in 1991) and the OIML Mutual Acceptance Arrangement (MAA) (OIML B 10 [4]) (established in 2005). The OIML logo (Figure 1) was used in conjunction with the OIML Basic Certificate System and the OIML MAA logo (Figure 3) was used in conjunction with the OIML MAA.

Note: In accordance with OIML B 18 [2], OIML Basic Certificates of Conformity and OIML MAA Certificates of Conformity are considered to remain valid.
